OVERVIEW OF THE VETERANS' TREATMENT COURT

As a result of military service, veterans may sustain or further exacerbate physical injuries and/or psychological injuries. And, as a result of the injuries sustained, they may:

- Abuse substances, including alcohol;
- Develop or exacerbate mental health disorders;
- Resort to criminal behavior.

The Veterans' Treatment Court seeks to address the underlying issues that brought the veteran in the criminal justice system. In order to assist veterans with their physical, psychological and/or mental health issues, veterans admitted to the Veterans' Treatment Court undergo about two years of intense court oversight and treatment. The program requires that the veteran:

- Complete drug and alcohol tests minimally 3 times a week throughout the program
- Obtain treatment for substance abuse and/or alcohol abuse
- Obtain treatment for mental health disorders
- Obtain treatment by the Veterans Administration Hospital, or community sources
- Veterans are closely monitored by the Court and probation throughout the two years of their participation
- Each veteran is assigned a veteran mentor that has been trained to assist veterans participating in the Court program
